Ambassador to Colombia
U.S. Embassy

Re: Millennium Challenge Corporation

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

As you know, in December, 2008, Colombia was informed of its eligibility to receive resources from the Millennium Challenge Corporation (MCC). For this reason, in May, 2009, we received a delegation from MCC and in June, Sandra Alzate, Director of International Cooperation of the Presidential Agency for Social Action, and Luz Stella Rodriguez, Coordinator of the Special Programs Group of the National Planning Department (DNP), attended MCCU in order to gain greater clarity on the procedures to obtain and apply MCC resources.

In the last several days, we were informed that because of an increase in Colombia's per capita income (as reported by the World Bank) there is uncertainty over Colombia's eligibility for MCC funds, now that the country exceeds the limits established for a Low-Middle Income Country.

Nevertheless, we would like to reiterate the Colombian Government's interest in being able to access MCC resources, as we consider that they can be used as important leverage in funding projects focused on reducing poverty and social exclusion through local economic development.

It is worth noting that Colombia is a country with high levels of regional and social diversity, which means the existence of regions of the country have per capita incomes well below the national average. For this reason, we suggest exploring the possibility of using MCC resources in those regions with the greatest inequality: less income; greater poverty; and greater indices of basic unsatisfied needs, among other criteria. Similarly, the Government also would be interested in contributing its funds to those projects that would be selected to receive MCC funds.

For these reasons, we respectfully request that you take our suggestions into account and, if possible, organize a new mission, with which, we would be willing to set up technical visits to regions, which could benefit from MCC support.

We look forward to your timely response and appreciate any assistance you can provide.

Cordially,

/s/
Oscar Ivan Zuluaga
Minister of Finance and Public Credit
